STRATEGIC THINKING

1. Strategic®

What Is Strategic?

People with strong Strategic talents can sort through the clutter to find the best route. You can't teach this skill. It is a distinct way of thinking – a unique perspective on the world at large. This outlook allows them to see patterns where others see complexity. Mindful of these patterns, they envision alternative scenarios, always asking, "What if this happened?" This recurring question helps them see, plan and prepare for future situations. They see a way when others assume there is no way. Armed with this strategy, they move forward.

Why Your Strategic Is Unique

Instinctively, you sometimes trust your ability to be an innovative thinker. You might invent several ways to reach a particular goal. Perhaps your next step is to narrow down your options to the best one. Sometimes you take into consideration prevailing circumstances, available resources, budgetary constraints, or pressing deadlines.

Chances are good that you are known for making unintelligible or complex ideas, plans, procedures, or regulations easy to understand.

By nature, you select the right combination of words to convey your ideas or feelings. In the middle of discussions, your vocabulary provides you with precise phrases and terminology. You probably express yourself with ease and grace.

Because of your strengths, you regularly look for patterns and ask yourself "what if" questions. You generally believe that a successful life requires preparation and strategic thinking.

It's very likely that you are inclined to prepare for the worst — not necessarily because you think the worst will happen, but because it is the sensible thing to do.

How Strategic Blends With Your Other Top Five Strengths

STRATEGIC + COMMUNICATION

You have many stories in your repertoire, but you sort through all of them to find the perfect one for each situation.

STRATEGIC + ACHIEVER

If at first you don't succeed, you try again. If you try again and still don't succeed, you consider your options and try one.

STRATEGIC + ARRANGER

Before you seek to manage multiple realities, you consider and evaluate multiple possibilities. Before you juggle, you sort.

STRATEGIC + LEARNER

Your willingness to embrace new experiences or information enhances your ability to generate a wide range of possible options.

Apply Your Strategic to Succeed

Think ahead to gain perspective.

- ☐ Take time to fully plan your path forward. While you easily see patterns where others see complexity, it is important to make time to envision these alternative scenarios.
- ☐ Practise explaining your decision-making process before talking with others. Doing this ensures people know you have considered different options and opinions to inform your decision.

2. Communication®

What Is Communication?

People with strong Communication talents like to explain, describe, host, present and write. Using their natural talents, they bring ideas and events to life. They turn thoughts and actions into stories, images, examples and metaphors. They want their information – whether an idea, an event, a discovery or a lesson – to captivate the audience. This drives them to hunt for the perfect phrase and draws them towards dramatic words and powerful statements, which is why people like listening to them. Their word pictures pique interest, provide clarity and inspire others to act.

Chances are good that you may prefer to partner with others to accomplish things rather than work alone. Perhaps this explains why you welcome a wide range of personalities into your life.

Driven by your talents, you periodically engage others in conversation about the meaning of life. You might discuss subjects that are beyond the understanding of the average mind. You might provide individuals with an opportunity to create, study, reflect, speculate, or tell stories. Sometimes these activities stimulate your thinking. Perhaps you prefer to spend time with people who can understand your profound theories, concepts, or perspectives on life.

Because of your strengths, you periodically engage innovators in small talk or serious discussions. Perhaps you ask for examples or illustrations to better understand their inventive ideas. You might keep these creative people talking so you collect an abundance of information. Afterward, you may replay these verbal exchanges in your mind. You attempt to identify innovators' key points, and sometimes assess whether their ideas for the coming years or decades make sense.

It's very likely that you may relish opportunities to consider the thoughts or feelings of others. You might feel most engaged in a conversation when you are listening. Your best contribution might be to remember the ideas or observations people share with one another. Later you sometimes amaze them. Why? You might know so much about their dreams, concerns, problems, interests, or viewpoints. "How do you know that?" a few ask. "I just listen," you may reply.

By nature, you periodically gravitate toward reading groups that converse about a particular author, book, or printed materials on a given topic. Prior to the session, you might gather some interesting facts from the assigned reading. By storing bits and pieces of information in your mind, you might increase your chances of recalling a specific insight you want to share with the other participants.

How Communication Blends With Your Other Top Five Strengths

COMMUNICATION + STRATEGIC

You have many stories in your repertoire, but you sort through all of them to find the perfect one for each situation.

COMMUNICATION + ACHIEVER

Others can count on you to deliver results and to deliver the message. You will get the job done and get the story told.

COMMUNICATION + ARRANGER

Strong relationships are key to a team's collaboration, so you encourage frequent and meaningful interactions.

COMMUNICATION + LEARNER

Your best educational experiences occur when you can have conversations with your teacher and other students.

Apply Your Communication to Succeed

Help people put their ideas into words.

- ☐ Capture other people's thoughts in words and relay them back to these individuals. This will help you connect with people by bringing attention to and refining their messages.
- ☐ If you are in a group, volunteer to summarise any necessary communication after a meeting or social gathering. With your ability to clarify what others say, you bring attention to what needs to be heard.

EXECUTING

3. Achiever®

What Is Achiever?

Achievers have a constant need for attainment. They have an internal fire burning inside them. It pushes them to do and achieve more. People with strong Achiever talents feel as if every day starts at zero. By the end of the day, they must accomplish something meaningful to feel good about themselves. And 'every day' means every single day: workdays, weekends, public holidays and even holidays. If the day passes without some form of achievement, no matter how small, Achievers feel dissatisfied. After finishing a challenging project, they rarely seek a reward of a rest or an easy assignment. While they appreciate recognition for past achievements, their motivation lies in striving towards the next goal on the horizon.

Why Your Achiever Is Unique

These Strengths Insights are personalised based on your CliftonStrengths results.

StrategicCommunication*Achiever*Arranger*Learner

Instinctively, you are an enterprising person. You effortlessly launch new ventures. You are likely to measure your progress on a regular basis. This information probably inspires you to work even harder.

It's very likely that you have a reputation for being diligent about your work or studies. Over time, you have practiced your craft, sharpening your skills and acquiring knowledge all the while. Industrious and qualified, you are determined to do things right. Before implementing a plan or acting on a decision, you judge whether it is correct, proper, and appropriate.

Chances are good that you are drawn to start-up activities. Why? They give you an opportunity to accomplish something no one else has done. You are likely to push yourself to reach goals. You are hardwired to double check your work to verify that everything is going as planned. You are equally concerned that every person and piece of equipment is in its assigned location.

Driven by your talents, you might declare that what you have to say is important. Maybe you convince individuals or groups to stop what they are doing and give you their undivided attention.

Because of your strengths, you earn respect and trust through your willingness to work hard even when no one's watching.

4. Arranger®

What Is Arranger?

Arrangers are conductors. When faced with a complex situation involving many factors, people with strong Arranger talents enjoy managing all of the variables, aligning and realigning them until they are sure they have arranged them in the most productive configuration possible. They are shining examples of effective flexibility, whether they are changing travel schedules at the last minute because they found a better fare or are mulling over just the right combination of people and resources to accomplish a new project. From the mundane to the complex, they are always looking for the perfect configuration.

Why Your Arranger Is Unique

These Strengths Insights are personalised based on your CliftonStrengths results.

StrategicCommunication*Achiever*Arranger*Learner

Driven by your talents, you might excel on teams whose members appreciate your ability to simultaneously think about several ideas, problems, or tasks. The more you have to juggle, the happier you may be.

By nature, you have the good sense to turn to others for help when unexpected problems threaten a project. You avoid producing shoddy or inaccurate results. You think it is foolhardy to try to do everything by yourself. You know it is impractical to shut out those who have the knowledge, skills, and/or talents you need to get through difficult times. More than once, you have seen individuals discover and appreciate one another's special gifts as they moved together toward a common goal in a spirit of cooperation.

Chances are good that you derive genuine pleasure from allocating your team's resources to where they are most needed at the moment. You are apt to place individuals in roles, establish a timeline to do tasks, manage the budget, and/or order the materials.

Because of your strengths, you know that every situation has a beginning and an end. You also know that there are various paths that can lead to the final objective. You instinctively evaluate each option and make wise choices as you sort through all the variables.

It's very likely that you are not bothered by disorder or chaos. You believe it has an underlying order that you just haven't figured out yet.

- ☐ Come up with different ways to become more efficient. Look for redundancy and impediments in the processes you follow the most often so you can find new ways of doing them.
- ☐ Look for chances to work in complex, dynamic environments that let you coordinate and develop strategies for getting things done. This will bring out your best.

5. Learner®

What Is Learner?

People with strong Learner talents constantly strive to learn and improve. The process of learning is just as important to them as the knowledge they gain. The steady and deliberate journey from ignorance to competence energises Learners. The thrill of learning new facts, beginning a new subject and mastering an important skill excites people with dominant Learner talents. Learning builds these people's confidence. Having Learner as a dominant theme does not necessarily motivate someone to become a subject-matter expert or strive for the respect that accompanies earning a professional or academic credential. The outcome of learning is less significant than the 'getting there'.

Instinctively, you occasionally see yourself as a contributing member of the group. You enjoy partnering with certain people. Perhaps you like to exchange information, share observations, or offer tips for doing things more easily, efficiently, or swiftly. You might be happiest collaborating with individuals who are not stingy with what they know. In some situations, you can figure out how everyone on the team can benefit from each other's knowledge, skills, experiences, or wisdom.

Because of your strengths, you may gather historical facts or artifacts — that is, pictures, tools, books, artwork, correspondence, or documents. Perhaps you wait to determine whether this information is useful. Your interest in history might have no purpose other than to answer your own questions. Maybe you are drawn to the past and its people. In some ways, the future starts to take shape in your mind if you rummage through your collection of historic truths and objects.

By nature, you might prefer to enroll in a difficult class rather than register for the easiest one. Perhaps comparing how well you are doing in relation to others has meaning only when you earn the best grades in the hardest courses. To some extent, you crave recognition for your knowledge and winning spirit.

Chances are good that you might fix your mind on capturing the topmost honor when your performances or results are compared to those of certain individuals. Sometimes you attempt to know a little bit more than the people who pit their knowledge against yours. Perhaps you practice specific skills until they become almost natural. You might aim to be the very best when you can choose the activities.

It's very likely that you may choose to associate with people who value yesteryear's stories, events, feats of daring, or interesting personalities. Perhaps you have a need to acquire historic information. Perhaps this leads you to experts who appreciate your thought-provoking questions.
